

CONDITIONAL OCCUPANCY REQUEST

The Ohio Building Code (OBC) and the Residential Code of Ohio (RCO) requires that a VALID Certificate of Occupancy be issued before any building or structure can be used or occupied.

A Conditional/Temporary Certificate of Occupancy can be issued upon request of the owner, if the building is safe and sanitary, that all life safety provisions (means of egress, fire protection (ie: fire sprinkler, fire alarm, etc.), including any special provisions (physical protection of the occupants), etc.) are maintained, and upon payment of a Conditional Certificate of Occupancy fee and any other outstanding fees at the time of the request.
